From The Uvalde Leader-News. THREE-TOED' DOG KILLER OF SHEEP AND GOATS SLAIN.

A three-toed dog which is said to have killed approximately $1,000 worth of sheep and goats among the flocks in the Utopia and Vanderpool country has at last been slain.

Depredation among the flocks has been going on for almost a year and despite the fact that the dog had been seen and shot at several times by ranchmen, and at one time was caught in a trap only to make its escape, minus its toes, it had escaped

To make its capture more difficult, the dog would appear among ks on one ranch, slaughter several animals and disappear. When next heard about, the canine would perhaps be several miles away.

One night last week it began its depredations on the Johnnie Thompson ranch. Thompson and his brother, Ham, stationed themselves in the pasture and waited until about midnight before Johnnie Thompson fin-ally got a shot which spelled the end of the killer.

Ranchmen throughout that territory are elated that the dog has at last been slain.

AT SUNSET.

The timbered blue across the west, With shadows hung in the hazy crest, Is always there, a misty way, With softest folds of blue and gray.

A score of miles from me there lies This border strip of old surprise, With shadowed beauty like a dream Of misty, timbered sunset gleam.

And often when I go my way With homely task at close of day, I wonder what will sunset hold When I have reached the misty fold.

Will the trial hours which I have won Be calling when my work is done, And shadows clear the hazy crest When I shall go beyond the west?

Italy Wins "Parity"

GREAT BRITAIN and France yielded to the demands of Mussolini and granted "parity" to Italy in the anti-piracy patrol of the Mediterranean. That sea was divided into three zones. The Italian zone includes the extensive Italian coast line, the Tyrrhenian sea around Sardinia and, in the east, the coast of the Libyan colony. The Aegean sea is assigned to Britain; and France will guard the Syrian coast and the sea lane between Marseilles and Algiers.

All three zones extend east to the drive around the Olympic peninsula Suez canal since all three powers are interested in keeping open that gateway to the East.

I got a current-mainly by accident-and it worked well for two or three days. Then all at once it quit on me. I found afterward that probably the plate got jarred a little. It took me three weeks to get on the right track. Then one day I said to myself, 'Oh, yes, a micrometer

"But you've succeeded at last!"

"To a certain extent, anyway There's a lot to be consideredwhether a number of batteries will all work together, for instance. But at least I've got two to work and to work hard for a long time. One horrible thought occurred to me: that maybe it will only work near electric plants already in operation under the old methods. That's why I'm up in this wild country, bag and baggage. I'm going to get far enough away to find out. It seems to be all right, though."

They returned to camp down the old wood road. The evening shadows were crouching close to earth, stealing back and forth like players in concealment waiting the moment to rise and take the stage. They walked in a spell that was unbroken until the campfire flickered through the trees.

"You don't know how I appreciate your telling me all this, Mr. Davenport," then said she.

"I told you my friends call me Larry," he pointed out: then at her slight withdrawal, "Oh I know we're sup posed to be recent acquaintances and all that; but we're not really, and you know it. But it isn't that. I speak from a sense of the appropriate. Now really, look at me. Am I a Larry looking person or a Davenport looking person?" He cocked his eye com ically in her direction.

She laughed. "You're right-Larry," said she.

CHAPTER VIII

The evening meal was a jolly one Grimstead's high good humor carried all temperamental differences before it. Even the taciturn Gardiner unbent to tell an anecdote. Burton was in the highest spirits, also, for she had what she considered a very intriguing secret, which she intended to keep for the time being at least, in the hope of extracting from the situation still further amusement. In this she was abetted by Larry Davenport himself. Now that that young man really understood the position in the social structure he was supposed to fill, he played up and became the Perfect Garage Mechanic. When this perform ance drew Simmins' puzzled eye Larry's happiness was complete.

After everybody had eaten all he could, and praised the same all he was able, the meal was at an end.

"Now," sighed Grimstead comfort ably, as he struggled to his thick legs. "if you young people will excuse us, Ross and I have a little business to talk over. We'll wander down toward the creek."

He lighted a cigar and, followed by Gardiner disappeared in the darkness. "Now." be demanded of Gardiner once they were settled on a convenien: "How about it?"

His benign good humor had fatten from him, and his whole being had tautened into a hard alertness.

"It's been running without a break and without apparent loss of energy at any time up to five o'clock, when I came in with Simmins to cook sup

"Looks like a good thing, then?" "It looks like better than that just on the showing it's already made." "I'm almost beginning to believe that cock-and-bull story about his hav ing come eleven hundred miles with it already."

"It's not impossible. It would be no more unprecedented than driving that starter all day."

"Well, we certainly played in luck hitting that stub. We've got to tie this thing down before somebody else gets hold of it. I wonder if anybody has? He might be tied up already."

"May be," agreed Gardiner, "but I don't think so. This seems to be his first test of the thing."

"Well, we must tie him up," said Grimstead.

He fell silent for so long that Gardiner at length asked:

"Going to buy him out, chief? You could probably get it cheap, compara-

"No," replied the older man. "I've been considering that. In the first place, I don't believe he'd sell out. I've been sizing him up pretty carefully, and I'm pretty sure that a direct offer he'd want advice about, or want time to consider. And, Ross, once he gets out of these redwoods and consults somebody, it's all off. Any fool can see the possibilities. No, we've got to cinch this thing here and now.'

"Yes, you're right on that," agreed

"But a share in the business is different-" went on Grimstead, "perhaps a royalty. I don't know: we'll see how he rises to it."

"You can probably make a good bargain," agreed Gardiner once more. "He apparently has no idea of the possible value of this thing."

Grimstead shrugged his shoulders a little impatiently.

"Gardiner," said he, "I sometimes wonder a little about you!"

"What do you mean?" asked Gardiner, startled at the tone.

"Your technical knowledge is beyond praise; but you've got the most awful blind spots.' "I'm sorry, chief, but what is it this time?" begged Gardiner, whose diplomacy was no small part of his suc-"I gather you think we could drive a cheap bargain with this young man?"

Gardiner considered his reply for a "Yes," he said finally, with conviction. "I think we could-before he gets talking with some one else."

"Of course we could, but we won't.

"I say we won't. I'll offer him the very largest share I can, or the highest royalties possible consistent with control and good business. See why?" Gardiner hesitated; then shook his

"Well, either this is a whopping big thing, or it is a flivver. If it's a flivver it doesn't matter if we give him the whole works: it would be giving him nothing. But suppose it turns out to be a world beater and we've made a sharp bargain. Either he, or some one else, is going to back. Then there's lawsuits and infringements without end. If, however, we have at the very start, before the thing is proved up at all, given him a full share, then when it turns out big he'll stay with us. Get it?" "Yes, sir, I do. You're right," said Gardiner. He saw the point quickly enough, once it was pointed out to him, for he was clever. This sort of thing was why Grimstead was the Chief and not the Second in Command

They returned to the fireside, where Burton and Larry were teasing Rap scallion, while Punketty-Snivvles cast malicious animal magnetism at them

"Well, young man," said Grimstead directly, "your battery seems to be making good. There's no doubt that you have a big thing there. I don't know just how big: that will have to be tested out pretty exhaustively. But even as a small battery it is big: and t may conceivably run into power."

"I believe it will," said Davenport "As I told you. I believe it will either run tandem with as many others as we can hitch on, or maybe increase of size would do it."

"Maybe. That would be a matter of experiment. But it's good enough to market as it is. Ever thoughof it?"

"Yes, of course. But I've never been sure enough it was going to work to do anything about it."

Grimstead cast an eye of triumph oward Gardiner.

"Well," said he, "I am considerably in the electric line myself. What would you think of taking it up with

"I was going to propose it myself, after you had satisfied yourself the thing was going to run."

"Good! Now I'm not going to insult your intelligence by trying to buy outright," said Grimstead, craftily gaining merit from his decision. 'You'd know better than that. There are two other methods. By one you would get a certain amount of stock in the company. By the other you would be paid a definite royalty. In the first instance you would have a voice in management, and also re sponsibility. In the second instance you would be relieved from all trouble but would have nothing to say." "I see the difference," Davenport nodded. 'But I don't believe I could decide as to my choice until I heard more definite proposition of each kind. How much stock would I get

Easy to Teach Baby Calves to Eat Dry Food

Task Is Simple After Calf Gets First Taste.

Dairymen who visit the Purina Experimental Farm always remark on the well developed calves raised at the farm and question the men in the calf barn how calves can be taught to eat dry feed at such an early age.

"Getting the calf started on dry feed is really a simple task and does not require a great deal of time," says W. R. Arends, call raising authority with Purina Mills. "When the calf is four days old the feeder should allow it to suck his finger for a few moments to start the flow of saliva in the calf's mouth. While his tingers are moist the feeder should dip them into calf startena and again let the calf suck them. Thus the calf gets his first taste of dry feed Drop Feed Into Calf's Mouth

"The next step is to hold the calf's head up, open its mouth and put a little calf startena on its tongue. The calf starts chewing immediately and s then well started on dry feed," Arend says. "Finally, the calf's head should be guided into the feeder containing the calf startena, so that thereafter it will know where to find dry No Milk After First Month

By the time the calf is a month old no milk at all is needed because the ralf's complete needs are taken care of by the calf startena, hay, water, and a ittle salt. This eliminates all bothersome work with grueis and bucket feeding, and actually gives the calf a more complete and nourishing feed than milk alone can supply. Milk is about 87 per cent water which means that a gallon of milk weighing eight and two-thirds pounds contains little more than a pound of solid feed. owing call needs than can possibly be consumed in mill alone. Feeding calf startena, hay water, and salt along with milk th first four weeks, and then cutting out milk completely and putting the calf entirely on dry feed, eliminates the danger of scours caused by feeding too much milk.

Calf Raising Book Available A vest pocket book on calf raising is available, without charge, at any feed store where Purina Chows are sold. It answers such questions as what the baby calf needs; when to start dry feed; how long milk should be fed teaching the calf the easy way; calf costs; money-maker heifers; scours and dehorning; and preparing calves for the show ring.

7,500 Feed Dealers Display Baby Chicks

So great have been the strides in boultry raising in recent years that even workers in the various phases of he industry are amazed at the results. Several years ago, Purina Mills, seeking to give visual evidence to poultry aisers of what modern feed will do for chicks, distributed two thousand small electric brooders to checkermard feed dealers. Merchants handing Purina feeds and concentrates were urged to place in these brooders twenty or tweny-five chicks, and to seep them before the public as actual evidence of what good feed will do for a chick

Displays Now Nation-Wide

The idea became popular in one enson. In the succeeding years it has spread rapidly, so that today in atjost any town, city, or village where a Purina dealer is located, the public is invited to see for themselves the profitable results of good feeding. These demonstrations have been an aclive factor in convincing people that good chicks, good management, and good feeding will bring in extra profits.

This season, seventy-five hundred Purina feed dealers all over the United States are displaying brooders filled with growing chicks. These chicks are being fed on startena, fortified with puratene. Above the brooders are charts showing average government standard weights for chicks at various iges during the first six weeks as compared with the startena fed chicks on display. The chick raising demonstrations now under way in Purina lealers' stores tell an interesting and profitable story to the modern poultry alser. These 1937 chicks present an irtight case in favor of modern management, care, and feeding.

CONSTITUTION DAY THIS YEAR.

It is both a paradox and a tribute in this, the 150th year since the signing of the Constitution, it should be undergoing its most severe test. A paradox seeks to rekindle a devotion to the Constitution, others seek to prostitute it to their own grasping for power. A tribute because it has stood for 150 years in defiance of all attacks.

One of the most common and insidious attacks has been that the Constitution is being used by a minority of the people to defeat the will of the majority. As a political CEIVE SOME BENEFIT PAYMENT plea for votes this is clever, for it is TO OFFSET THE TARIFF BURa direct appeal to the majority. Thus doth our modern shod over their weaker brethren. The statesmen teach! Bill of Rights was added to strengthen this protection. The Constitutional Amendment was provided to permit the will of the many to prevail.

Thus, so long as the Constitution stands, there can never be persecution of any religious group or other minority, by the majority. The minority can speak its mind publicly without fear of arrest and imprisonment. Property can not be taken Indian University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. Creamery butter production was nearly 50 per cent above that of the preceding month and 8.5 per cent greater than during April last year, Dr. Buechel said. Ice cream production was up 58.8 per cent and 3.1 per cent respectively. "There are two important reasons why the de- last night.—Rochester paper. velopment of the dairy industry of Texas is of general interest to the people if this State," Dr. Buechel pointed out. "First, because milk and milk products are ranked high by all leading dietitians as an economical source of the vitamins and energy which make for human health and efficiency. Second, expansion of this industry can be made to contribute substantially to a rational readjustment of agriculture in a number of areas in the State. "Such limited Langfeld and daughter, Carrie, Elton were mints of club colors, pink and studies as have been in Texas indicate clearly that in the case of a large percentage of the population, per capita consumption of milk and milk products in Texas is far below minimum standard recommended by dietitians. Further studies should be made in representative localities over the entire State in order that the actual situation may be more definitely known. If, as a result of such indications of the inadequacy of milk and milk products in the diet are verified, consideration might well be given to meeting the problems by an appropriate educational program. The conduct of such a program would involve the schools, the farmers, the distributors of milk, and the manufacturers of milk products.
